

Presentation title:

Defining a path toward evidence-based policing

Speaker: David Weisburd (National Policing Institute, USA/Israel)

Professor Weisburd will reflect on how evidence-based policing has shed light on the path ahead and how his research with the NPI illuminates opportunities for policing to be evidence-based and ultimately effective. Professor Weisburd will highlight two experiments one conducted in the early 2000s that showed that police could focus in on hot spots without spatial displacement, and another completed recently that shows how hot spots policing can be enhanced with training in procedural justice.
